FORT HOOD SHOOTING

LENNY IGNEZLI/AP

The hearse carrying the casket of Fort Hood shooting victim Capt. John Paul Gaffaney pulls away Friday as Gaffaney's widow, Christine, mourns at Marine Corps Air Station Miramar in San Diego. Christine Gaffaney is escorted by Maj. Timothy Grimes. The funeral services for Gaffaney and several of the other 12 victims of the Fort Hood shooting rampage were held Saturday.

Obama urges Congress to put off probe

By PHILIP ELLIOTT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama on Saturday urged Congress to hold off on any investigation of the Fort Hood rampage until federal law enforcement and military authorities have completed their probes into the shootings at the Texas Army post, which left 13 people dead.

On an eight-day Asia trip, Obama turned his attention home and pleaded for lawmakers to “resist the temptation to turn this tragic event into the political theater.” He said those who died on the nation's largest Army post deserve justice, not political stagecraft.

“The stakes are far too high,” Obama said in a video and Internet address released by the White House while the president was flying from Tokyo to Singapore, where Pacific Rim countries were meeting.

Army psychiatrist Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan, 39, was charged Thursday with 13 counts of premeditated murder in the Nov. 5 shooting spree at Fort Hood. Army investigators have said Hasan is the only suspect and could face additional charges.

Obama already had ordered a review of all intelligence related to Hasan and whether the information was properly shared and acted upon within government agencies. Several members of Congress, particularly Michigan Rep. Peter Hoekstra, the top Republican on the House Intelligence Committee, have also called for a full examination of what agencies knew about Hasan's contacts with a radical Muslim cleric in Yemen.

President pledges stronger Asia ties

By TERI WEAVER

TOKYO — President Barack Obama launched his inaugural trip to Asia this weekend by calling for a revitalized alliance with Japan and declaring the United States a member of the Pacific region.

Nuclear threats from North Korea, rising extremism in island nations, growing trade between the United States and Asia, concerns about climate change, and continued human trafficking all unify interests on both sides of the Pacific, Obama said.

“I want everyone to know, and I want everyone in America to know, that we have a stake in the future of the region, because what happens here has a direct effect on what happens on our lives at home,” the president said at a morning speech in Tokyo before a crowd of 2,000 invited guests.

Obama's call for a stronger relationship with Pacific nations comes as the United States faces a test of wills with Japan, one of its greatest economic and military allies. The two countries are at odds over the future of the U.S. troop presence on Okinawa, Japan's southernmost island that hosts nearly half of the almost 50,000 American servicemembers in the country.

“That is why, at this critical moment in history, the two of us have not only reaffirmed our alliance, we've agreed to deepen it,” Obama said Saturday morning in the main concert arena of Sunory Hall.

Obama: Praise for Japan, China, criticism of N. Korea on trip

But during his 24-hour visit to Japan that stretched over Friday and Saturday, Obama stopped short of directly tackling the Okinawa issue. Instead, the president acknowledged that Japanese voters had called for "a promise of change," comparing his own historic election last year with that of Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama, whose Democratic Party of Japan this fall beat out the five-decade rule of the more conservative Liberal Democratic Party.

That change allows for an expeditious review of the three-year-old Marine relocation plan, Obama and Hatoyama said at a Friday night news conference, repeating pledges from earlier in the week.

Obama's visit to Japan, two months before the 50th anniversary of the U.S.-Japan alliance, was the first of a four-country tour in Asia. Other planned stops included an Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation meeting in Singapore, an official state dinner in Beijing and meeting with South Korean leaders and U.S. troops.

On Saturday morning, Obama praised Japan and its neighbors for working together in recent years to build economic ties and encourage democratic values.

The president criticized North Korea for its continued provocations and nuclear ambitions.

"We will not be cowed by threats, and we will continue to send a clear message through our actions, and not just our words," Obama said. "North Korea's refusal to meet its international obligations will lead only to less

South Koreans protest deployment plans

AHN YOUNG-JOON/AP

About 200 South Koreans rallied Saturday to protest a government plan to send troops to Afghanistan, days ahead of a visit to Seoul by President Barack Obama. South Korea pulled its troops out of Afghanistan in 2007 following a hostage crisis in which two South Koreans were killed. However, the government announced last month it intends to expand a South Korean team helping to rebuild the country and will dispatch police and troops to protect them. Obama is due to visit Seoul on Wednesday.

security, not more."

Obama also called China's emergence as an economic power a success not to be feared.

"The United States does not seek to contain China. ... The rise of a strong and prosperous China can be a source of strength for the community of nations," he said to applause.

Early in his remarks, Obama reflected on his only other visit to Japan when he was a child, remembering the Buddhist temples of Kamakura and the taste of green tea ice cream. He gave special thanks to the residents of a tiny northwestern fishing and logging town that shares his name — Obama, Japan — to one of the first of about a dozen rounds of applause.

Later in the speech, Obama turned his attention to Myanmar — which he referred to as Burma. He called on the military-run government to release its political prisoners and ease its restrictions on human rights or face continued pressure from the United States.

"Existing sanctions will remain until there are concrete steps toward democratic reform,"

Obama said.

After the speech, Ginowan Mayor Yoichi Iha noted Obama's push to uphold human rights.

"I would like for him to start in Okinawa," said Iha, whose city includes Marine Corps Air Station Futenma, the focal point of the argument involving the troop relocation on the island.

Last week, Iha brought a resolution to Tokyo in which Okinawan residents called for the closing of the base at Futenma and a halt to the planned relocation to a more rural part of the island.

The people, Iha argued, are worried about the potential dangers of keeping a busy air station in the midst of people's homes and businesses.

Iha said the visit was an opportunity for the president to better understand the new government's campaign promises to revisit the military agreement. The mayor also said he hoped that next time Obama would visit Okinawa, "as soon as possible."

Obama boosts Asia free trade hopes

SINGAPORE — President Barack Obama raised hopes for creating an Asia-Pacific free-trade region by announcing Saturday that the U.S. would seek to join a smaller group seen as a precursor to a broader Pacific Rim agreement.

News that the U.S. would participate in the Trans-Pacific Partnership was announced in Tokyo and Singapore, drawing applause at the annual Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum.

"Significant steps like the TPP are important to help keep up the momentum in our efforts to realize the ... vision" to create a region-wide free trade area said Singapore Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong.

Clarification

A Nov. 15 story about a dispute between the U.S. and Japan over plans for a new Marine airfield on Okinawa should have stated that a 2006 agreement between the two countries covered the realignment of about 50,000 U.S. troops in Japan. Of those troops, about 8,000 Marines would be relocated to Guam.

Family, friends mourn 6 Fort Hood victims

By RYAN J. FOLEY
The Associated Press

The hundreds of people who lined the main street of a small Indiana city Saturday fell solemnly silent as a white hearse passed by on its way to the church. Mourners streamed into a Wisconsin gymnasium to remember a soldier who once promised to take down Osama bin Laden.

Across the country, many stood before flag-draped coffins during funeral services for several of the 13 victims of the Nov. 5 shootings in Fort Hood, Texas.

In Plymouth, Ind. Sheila Ellabarger had placed two foot-high American flags in the grass where she watched the procession for Army Staff Sgt. Justin DeCrow. She said her children went to school with DeCrow and his wife — his high school sweetheart — and she knew other members of his family.

"He was killed by a terrorist in my mind but he was still killed in the line of duty. We owe him a debt of gratitude, him and his family and the other soldiers. We owe them our lives, our freedom," Ellabarger said.

During services in Norman, Okla., snapshots from Army Spc. Jason Dean Hunt's recent wedding were projected near his casket. The 22-year-old was described as a loving husband and family man as well as a soldier who left a legacy of selflessness and service.

The high school gymnasium in Kiel, Wis., was filled Saturday for Staff Sgt. Amy Krueger's funeral. A visitation had been held there Friday where the 29-year-old was remembered as a determined, energetic young woman.

She joined the Army Reserve after the 2001 terrorist attacks and vowed to hunt down bin Laden. When her mother said she couldn't do it alone, the soldier defiantly told her, "watch me."

Krueger was to deploy to Afghanistan for a second time in December and had recently been sent for training at Fort Hood, where authorities allege Army psychiatrist Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan opened fire at a processing center.

"Her smile would light up any room, her energy would envelope all of those around her," her parents, Jeri and David Krueger, said in a statement. "It is that smile and that energy that keeps us going throughout this difficult time."

She was what they call "Army Proud." Krueger always wore an Army hat or shirt around town and sported a tattoo that had a tattered American flag and read: "All gave some. Some gave all. Sacrifice."

Other funerals on Saturday were for Capt. John Gaffaney, 56, a psychiatric nurse who worked for San Diego County, Calif., and Pfc. Michael Pearson, 22, of Bolingbrook, Ill.

Among the mourners at Pfc. Aaron Thomas Nemelka's service were Utah Gov. Gary Herbert and U.S. Rep. Jason Chaffetz.

The 19-year-old Nemelka, of West Jordan, Utah, joined the Army a little more than a year ago and was preparing to deploy to Iraq.

Probe: Task force knew of e-mails to imam in 2008

Hoekstra confirmed last week that government officials knew of about 10 to 20 e-mails between Hasan and the radical imam, beginning in December 2008.

A joint terrorism task force overseen by the FBI learned late last year of Hasan's repeated contact with the cleric, who encouraged Muslims to kill U.S. troops in Iraq. The FBI said the task force did not refer early information about Hasan to superiors because it concluded he wasn't linked to terrorism.

Lawmakers, however, already have announced they want their own investigations and were frustrated with what they view as a less-than-forthcoming administration.

Republican Rep. Howard McKeon said he wanted to go ahead with an investigation from the House Armed Services Committee, where he is the top Republican. He said he wanted an investigation that wouldn't compromise law enforcement or military investigations that were continuing on separate tracks.

In the Senate, Sen. Joe Lieberman, a Connecticut independent, said his Homeland Security Committee was opening an investigation.

Obama said he was not opposed to hearings — eventually. But he strongly pressed lawmakers to hold off until the probes now under way are completed.

Congressman says Hasan had communications with Pakistan

By ANGELA K. BROWN AND SUZANNE GAMBOA
The Associated Press

FORT HOOD, Texas — The Army psychiatrist charged with killing 13 people in a shooting spree at Fort Hood made or accepted wire transfers with Pakistan, a country wracked by Muslim extremist violence, a Republican congressman said Friday.

Texas Rep. Michael McCaul, the ranking GOP member of the House Homeland Security Intelligence Subcommittee, said people outside the intelligence community with direct knowledge of the transfers also told him Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan also had communications with Pakistan.

"He may have friends or relatives or whatever and this could be totally (innocent)," McCaul said in a telephone interview. "But if he is wiring money to Pakistan, that could be terrorist financing. If he was receiving money from Pakistan, that is more significant."

McCaul said he does not know the direction of the transfers and communications, only that they passed between Hasan and Pakistan. He said the lack of additional information is why Congress should launch an investigation.

Hasan, 39, was charged Thursday with 13 counts of premeditated murder in a military court, and Army investigators have said he is the only suspect in the case and could face additional charges. His attorney, John Galligan, has said prosecutors have not yet told him whether they plan to seek the death penalty.

A pair of civilian police officers responding to the Nov. 5 attack, in which 43 people were also injured, including 34 with gunshot wounds, shot Hasan four times. Recovering in the intensive care unit at San Antonio's Brooke Army Medical Center, Hasan has told his attorney he has no feeling in his legs and extreme pain in his hands.

Galligan said doctors have told Hasan he may be permanently paralyzed from the waist down. He called his client's medical condition "extremely serious" and said Hasan didn't flinch when Galligan touched his leg during a meeting Thursday, when one of Hasan's relatives was able to see him for the first time since he was hospitalized.

Hospital spokesman Dewey Mitchell said he could not confirm whether Hasan was paralyzed, since Hasan has directed hospital officials not to release any information about his condition or injuries.

ABOARD THE USS GEORGE WASHINGTON — In a scene reminiscent of Tom Cruise's "Top Gun," a combat jet pulled up to the aircraft carrier's catapult. Hand salutes were exchanged between the pilot and ground crew and, moments later, the plane screamed down the short runway, hitting 140 mph in just three seconds.

Minutes later, the scene repeated itself as the flight-deck crews — wearing different-colored shirts to signify their different duties — sent more jets roaring off on more air missions.

This year's ANNUALEX was in full gear Friday. Ships and aircraft from the U.S. Navy and the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force filled the ocean and skies off the coast of Okinawa for the annual naval maneuvers, which started last Tuesday and will conclude Wednesday. With 8,500 U.S. sailors participating, ANNUALEX is the biggest yearly exercise between the two nations, officials said.

Capt. Ross Myers, the commander of Carrier Air Wing 5, embarked aboard the George Washington, said the annual exercise is key to the two countries' warfighting skills.

"We learn valuable lessons working with each other, which allows us to operate at our full potential during a time of conflict," Myers was quoted as saying in a Navy news release. "Having JASDF pilots on board helps us gain a greater understanding of each other's capabilities."

Errors prompt scrutiny of Arlington record keeping

By JEFF SCHOGOL
Stars and Stripes

ARLINGTON, Va. — Army Secretary John McHugh has ordered an investigation into allegations of poor record keeping and "lost accountability of some graves" at Arlington National Cemetery, the Defense Department announced Friday afternoon.

"As the final resting place of our nation's heroes, any questions about the integrity or accountability of its operations should be examined in a manner befitting their service and sacrifice," McHugh said in a DOD news release.

The move comes after cemetery workers buried cremated remains in a grave site already in use and then moved the remains, possibly without notifying the next of kin, officials said.

"Since then, questions have been raised over whether cemetery officials used proper procedures to correct the mistake, including notifying the next of kin," Friday's news release said.

Also Friday, the Army released the results of an investigation that found officials at the cemetery did not properly mark a grave discovered in 2003 in what was supposed to be a vacant plot.

"Between May 2003 and July 2009, there is no evidence that a temporary grave marker or a permanent headstone was prepared or placed at the grave site where a casket was known by [cemetery] staff members to be interred," the report said.

In July, the cemetery superintendent launched a check of records from 1979 to 2003 to try to identify whose remains were in the unmarked grave, the report said.

An ensuing investigation could not determine whose grave was discovered, but it is possible that a husband and wife who died years apart were buried in adjacent grave sites instead of the same plot, Military District of Washington spokesman Col. Dan Baggio said in the news release.

The husband and wife's names were redacted from the report.

"Cemetery officials have ordered new grave markers for the site," the news release said. "While exhuming the remains and conducting DNA testing would provide a 100 percent assurance of the cemetery's findings, the family has declined taking such invasive action. The Army is abiding by their wishes."

In July the grave was marked as an "unknown," but it will now be properly marked, said Army spokesman Gary Tallman.

NATO disputes claim it killed Afghan civilians during raid

The Associated Press

KABUL — NATO and Afghan forces killed several insurgents, including an armed woman, in a search operation in western Afghanistan on Saturday, the alliance said.

The governor of Shindand district in Herat, where the operation took place, said three civilians were killed and three children were wounded when insurgents used a civilian house for cover during the fighting.

NATO rejected claims that the operations had caused civilian casualties, saying the security force "protected several women and children present in the compounds, and no civilians were harmed during the operation."

The alliance said the operation was conducted because the area was "associated with a leading (bomb) facilitator."

In the southern province of Zabul, a woman was accidentally killed when another joint operation by Afghan and international forces used explosives to enter a compound in search of a Taliban district commander, NATO said.

In the same province, a district chief said a roadside bomb struck a civilian vehicle, killing three people and wounding two others.

Separately, the alliance announced the deaths of two U.S. servicemembers and an American civilian contractor in two explosions Friday in southern and eastern Afghanistan.

One U.S. servicemember was killed by a roadside bomb in southern Afghanistan, while the other troop and the contractor died in a separate bomb attack in eastern Afghanistan, NATO said.

No further details were released about the deaths, which brought the number of U.S. servicemembers killed this month to eight.

IN THE STATES

Legal risks may accompany 9/11 trials

By DEVLIN BARRETT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the biggest trial of the age of terrorism, the professed mastermind of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks on the United States and four alleged henchmen will be hauled before a civilian court on American soil, barely a thousand yards from the site of the World Trade Center's twin towers they are accused of destroying.

Attorney General Eric Holder announced the decision Friday to bring Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and four others detained at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to trial at a New York City courthouse.

It is a risky move. Trying the men in civilian court will bar evidence obtained under duress and complicate a case where anything short of quick and certain convictions will empower President Barack Obama's critics.

The case is likely to force the civilian federal court to confront a host of difficult issues, including rough treatment of detainees, sensitive intelligence gathering and the potential spectacle of defiant terrorists disrupting proceedings. U.S. civilian courts prohibit evidence obtained through coercion, and a number of detainees were questioned using harsh methods some call torture.

Holder insisted both the court system and the untainted evidence against the five men are strong enough to deliver a guilty verdict and the penalty he expects to seek: a death sentence for the deaths of nearly 3,000 people who were killed when four hijacked jetliners slammed into the towers, the Pentagon, and a field in western Pennsylvania.

"After eight years of delay, those allegedly responsible for the attacks of September 11th will finally face justice. They will be brought to New York, to New York," Holder repeated for emphasis, "to answer for their al-

Holder said he decided to bring Mohammed and the other four before a civilian court rather than a military commission because of the nature of the undisclosed evidence against them; because the Sept. 11 victims were mostly civilians; and because the attacks took place on U.S. soil. Institutionally, the Justice Department, where Holder has spent most of his career, has long wanted to reassert the ability of federal courts to handle terror cases.

Lawyers for the accused almost certainly will try to have charges thrown out based on the rough treatment of the detainees at the hands of U.S. interrogators, including repeated waterboarding, or simulated drowning, of Mohammed.

The question has been raised as to whether the government can make its case without using coerced confessions.

That may not matter, said Pat Rowan, a former Justice Department official.

"When you consider everything that's come out in the proceedings at Gitmo, either from the mouth of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and others or from their written statements submitted to the court, it seems clear that they won't need to use any coerced confessions in order to demonstrate their guilt," said Rowan.

Held at Guantanamo since September 2006, Mohammed said in military proceedings there that he wanted to plead guilty and be executed to achieve what he views as martyrdom. In a letter from him released by the war crimes court, he referred to the attacks as a "noble victory" and urged U.S. authorities to "pass your sentence on me and give me no respite."

Holder insisted the case is on firm legal footing, but he acknowledged the political ground may be more shaky when it comes to bringing feared al-Qaida terrorists to U.S. soil.

"To the extent that there are political consequences, I'll just have to take my lumps," he said.

Any political consequences, however, will reach beyond Holder to his boss, Obama.

Bringing such notorious suspects to U.S. soil to face trial is a major step in Obama's plan to close the detention center in Cuba. Obama initially planned to close the prison by Jan. 22, but the administration is not expected to meet that deadline.

Obama said he is "absolutely convinced that Khalid Sheikh Mohammed will be subject to the most exacting demands of justice. The American people will insist on it, and my administration will insist on it."

After the announcement, political criticism and praise for the decision divided mostly along party lines.

The five suspects are headed to New York together because they are all accused of conspiring in the 2001 attacks, and are likely to face thousands of counts of murder and conspiracy.

The government also announced five other Guantanamo detainees, including the alleged mastermind of the 2000 bombing of the USS Cole, Abd al-Rahim al-Nashiri, would be sent to military commissions to face charges.

Holder said no decision had been made on where commission-bound detainees would go. A Navy brig in South Carolina has been high on the list of sites under consideration.

The transfer of the detainees from Guantanamo to New York is not expected to happen for many more weeks, because formal charges have not been filed against most of them.

The administration already has sent one detainee, Ahmed Ghailani, to New York to face trial.

The four other detainees headed to military commissions in the United States are, Omar Khadr, Ahmed Mohammed al-Darbi, Ibrahim Ahmed Mahmoud al-Qosi and Noor Uthman Muhammed. Their cases are not specifically connected, but two of them are accused of plotting against or attacking U.S. military personnel.

Alleged Sept. 11 conspirators

Khalid Sheikh Mohammed

■ Mohammed admitted to interrogators that he was the mastermind of the attacks. He allegedly proposed the concept to Osama bin Laden as early as 1996, obtained funding for the attacks from bin Laden, oversaw the operation and trained the hijackers in Afghanistan and Pakistan. He was born in Pakistan's Baluchistan province and raised in Kuwait.

Waleed bin Attash

■ Bin Attash, a Yemeni better known as Khallad, allegedly ran an al-Qaida training camp in Logar, Afghanistan, where two of the 19 hijackers were trained. Bin Attash is believed to have been bin Laden's bodyguard. Authorities say bin Laden selected him as a hijacker, but he was prevented from participating when he was briefly detained in Yemen in early 2001.

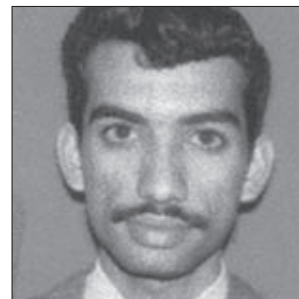

Ramzi Binalshibh

■ Binalshibh, a Yemeni, allegedly helped find flight schools for the hijackers, helped them enter the U.S. and assisted with financing the operation. He allegedly was selected to be a hijacker and prepared for the operation, but he was unable to get a U.S. visa. He also is believed to be a lead operative for a foiled plot to crash aircraft into London's Heathrow Airport.

Mustafa Ahmad al-Hawsawi

■ Al-Hawsawi, a Saudi, allegedly helped the hijackers with money, Western clothing, traveler's checks and credit cards. Al-Hawsawi testified in the trial of Zacarias Moussaoui, saying he had seen Moussaoui at an al-Qaida guesthouse in Kandahar, Afghanistan, in early 2001, but was never introduced to him or conducted operations with him.

Ali Abd al-Aziz Ali

■ Ali, also known as Ammar al-Baluchi, allegedly helped nine of the hijackers travel to the U.S. and sent them $120,000 for expenses and flight training. He is believed to have served as a key lieutenant to Khalid Sheikh Mohammed in Pakistan. He was born in Pakistan's Baluchistan province and raised in Kuwait.

U.S., Russia near deal on nuclear arms treaty

By DESMOND BUTLER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and Russia have agreed on the broad outlines of a deal to replace a major Cold War-era arms control agreement and are trying to work out remaining technical issues, U.S. officials say.

The U.S. administration hopes that President Barack Obama and his Russian counterpart, Dmitry Medvedev, will be able to sign a replacement for the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty when Obama travels to Europe to accept the Nobel Peace Prize on Dec. 10.

A new agreement would be a step toward the Obama administration's promise to work toward a nuclear-free world and could offer momentum for other arms control and nonproliferation goals. It would also illustrate improving relations with Russia at a time when Washington is looking for cooperation on issues including reining in Iran's nuclear ambitions.

Obama and Medvedev agreed at a Moscow summit in July to cut the number of nuclear warheads each possesses to between 1,500 and 1,675 within seven years as part of a broad new treaty. The existing START treaty, which set a limit of 6,000 warheads each, expires Dec. 5.

The remaining issues in negotiations involve procedures for the two countries to verify that the other side is meeting the terms of the treaty, two administration officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Both sides view verification procedures under the existing treaty as too onerous.

Daryl Kimball, executive director of the Arms

Control Association, who follows the negotiations, said negotiations have been difficult only because of the time pressure of the expiring treaty. Earlier negotiations, during the Bush administration, had stalled.

"I don't foresee a major problem that can't be resolved within the next four weeks," Kimball said. "Neither side wants to go without a new agreement for very long."

Russia had been pushing for an explicit link in the new treaty between offensive weapons and missile defense, but it is unlikely that the final deal will include any limitation on U.S. missile defense.

Even if negotiators conclude a deal by the expiration of the existing START treaty, the new treaty will not take effect until the Russian Duma and the U.S. Senate have ratified it, which could take months.

Seizure of assets allegedly linked to Iran may close schools, mosques

By RACHEL ZOLL
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The organization that federal investigators say is a front for the Iranian government has spent millions of dollars over the years on philanthropy: buying property for four U.S. mosques, funding religious schools and language classes, and translating books on Islam.

The move to seize assets held by the New York-based Alavi Foundation will cripple the charity's work and put the government in the awkward position of potentially shutting down the houses of worship, which occupy buildings and land that Alavi owns.

There are no claims of wrongdoing at the mosques. And they will stay open as prosecutors try to take hold of the hundreds of millions of dollars in Alavi money and property. The mosques were not mentioned by name, only listed by street address.

On Friday, the government moved to cut off Alavi's direct access to its money, according to court records.

The Islamic centers and schools are deeply dependent on Alavi funding, according to tax records and the mosques' own Web sites. That makes them more vulnerable if the foundation closes.

Sabukta Chowdhury, a parent at the Razi School, a K-12 school that is part of the Imam Ali Mosque in the Queens borough of New York City, said her child would be upset if the school closed.

"The school is very good," Chowdhury said outside the building Friday. "My child very sad. They do not want to go to another school."

Abdulaziz Sachedina, a University of Virginia professor and expert on Shiite Islam, predicted the four Islamic centers in New York, Maryland, Texas and California would shut down.

"I'm just upset that the mosques are being targeted for closure," said Ahmed Shabazz, who organizes community service work at the Islamic Center of Houston. "There's guilt by association, it seems to me at this point, because of who we rent the property from."

Ex-congressman gets 13-year term in bribery case

By MATTHEW BARAKAT
The Associated Press

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Prosecutors called a former Louisiana congressman's corruption the most extensive in the history of Congress. His punishment delivered a similar message.

William Jefferson, who famously hid $90,000 cash in his freezer, was sentenced Friday to 13 years in prison for taking bribes, the longest term ever imposed on a congressman for bribery charges.

The Democrat who represented parts of New Orleans for nearly 20 years was convicted in August of taking about $500,000 in bribes and seeking millions more in exchange for using his influence to broker business deals in Africa.

"There must be some sort of greed virus that attacks those in power," U.S. District Judge T.S. Ellis III said.

Jefferson was allowed to remain free until a hearing later this week. Prosecutors want him to begin serving his sentence immediately, while the defense wants Jefferson to remain free while he appeals his conviction.

Jefferson was also ordered to forfeit roughly $470,000 in bribery proceeds — the government expects to seize Jefferson's retirement savings and other assets to enforce the judgment. Jefferson, meanwhile, has filed for bankruptcy protection and his wife is claiming rights to some of those assets.

Jefferson became Louisiana's first African-American congressman since Reconstruction in 1991. He served until 2008.

New Ohio federal prosecutor to shift some attention from terror

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Eight years after the 9/11 attacks, the time has come to shift crime-fighting resources to other areas while keeping terrorism as a top priority, a new Ohio federal prosecutor said.

So many federal agents were moved to terror investigations that prosecutions of more traditional crimes suffered, said Carter Stewart, the new U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Ohio.

"I would like to have more resources go back to our bread-and-butter cases," Stewart told The Associated Press on Friday.

Carter said his prosecution priorities will include financial crime, mortgage fraud, public corruption, environmental crime and the exploitation of children.

"Obviously, we don't want to go overboard, we don't want to shift all our resources out of terrorism," Stewart said. "But I think there's probably a balance to be found."

President Barack Obama nominated Stewart, and the U.S. Senate confirmed him Sept. 15.

Suicide blast at Pakistan checkpoint leaves 11 dead

By RIAZ KHAN

The Associated Press

PESHAWAR, Pakistan — A suicide car bomber attacked a police checkpoint in northwest Pakistan on Saturday, killing 11 people, including four children, the latest in a wave of militant attacks that have claimed more than 300 lives in the past month.

The attack on the outskirts of Peshawar underlines the city's ominous status as a primary target for militants trying to force the military to end an offensive against their associates launched last month in the border region of South Waziristan, where al-Qaida and Taliban leaders are believed to be hiding.

Strikes in the past week alone have killed more than 50 people in the city, including 10 at the regional office of Pakistan's top intelligence agency, which was targeted by a massive truck bombing Friday. The agency, Inter Services Intelligence, has been overseeing much of the country's anti-terror campaign.

On Saturday, a Taliban commander claimed responsibility for that attack and another targeting a police station the same day in neighboring Bannu district. He vowed the violence would continue.

"The suicide bombers were trained by me and I have a lot more volunteers to carry out more attacks," Qari Hussain Mehsud said during a phone call. The reporter had met the commander in the past and recognized his voice.

Liaqat Ali Khan, the city's police chief, said 11 people were killed, including two police officials. Four children and a woman were among the dead, while another 25 people were wounded, he said.

Trade between Koreas unfazed by naval clash

By KWANG-TAE KIM

The Associated Press

SEOUL — A North Korean cargo ship entered South Korean waters Saturday — a sign that trade has been unaffected by a recent deadly naval clash off their western coasts, an official said.

The ship dropped anchor west of Seoul just one day after North Korea's military threatened to "take merciless military measures to defend" itself and warned that South Korea would be forced to pay a heavy price for the recent firefight over their disputed maritime border.

A Unification Ministry spokesman said, however, that neither side has taken any measures to restrict inter-Korean trade — one of few legitimate sources of foreign currency for the impoverished communist North.

The naval skirmish was the first in seven years and came ahead of a trip to Seoul by President Barack Obama, who arrives Wednesday. A senior South Korean military officer said one North Korean officer died in the fight and three others were wounded. South Korea suffered no casualties.

South Korea responded by putting its 680,000-member military on guard, though officials said they have seen no evidence of unusual North Korean moves.

The decision to permit the North Korean ship entry was made before the clash, Unification Ministry spokesman Chun Hae-sung said.

North Korean ships have docked 35 times at the port in the first nine months of the year, according to the Port Authority.

Fire at shooting range in South Korea kills 10

SEOUL — A fire tore through an indoor shooting range in southern South Korea on Saturday, killing 10 people, including at least two Japanese tourists, and injuring six, police said.

Nine Japanese tourists and their South Korean guide were inside the facility in the southeastern port city of Busan when the fire broke out on the second floor of a five-story building, police official Han Jong-seok said. He said it was not known how many other people were in the building at the time.

Four people — two Japanese and two South Koreans — were being treated for burns over 50 percent to 90 percent of their bodies at Hana hospital in Busan, which specializes in burn treatment, the hospital said.

KADENA AIR BASE, Okinawa — Not all the competitors could take first place in their events, but they all were winners in the eyes of the spectators.

Some 900 special-needs athletes converged at Risner Sports Complex to give their all Saturday for the 10th Anniversary Special Olympics on Kadena Air Base.

According to organizers, about 6,000 people showed up to watch the events and cheer on the athletes.

Participants competed in running, Frisbee, basketball, softball, golf, wheelchair beanbag drop, soccer, tennis, floor hockey and the long jump.

The day also showcased the talents of about 300 special-needs artists, who had their work on display.

"It was such a great and humbling experience," said Air Force Staff Sgt. LaPeach Clark, who was one of hundreds of volunteers who spent the day with the athletes and artists. "It just makes you realize how much we take for granted. Just the smallest things bring such excitement to these kids. It's not about the medals for them; it's about having a great time."

Hangar fire at Atsugi injures 3

Stars and Stripes

TOKYO — A fire at a Naval Air Facility Atsugi hangar Saturday left two Japanese workers hospitalized and a third with minor burns, base and Japanese fire officials said.

The fire was reported at about 11:55 a.m. at Hangar 183, base spokesman Tim McGough said.

Three Obayashi Corporation workers were burned and transported to Kitazato Hospital in Sagami City, he said, adding that the cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Two people suffered burns that could require three weeks of hospitalization, an Ayase Fire Department official said. The third person suffered minor burns and was released.

Kitazato Hospital officials declined comment on the extent of their injuries.

Part of the hangar wall and an office attached to the hangar sustained damage, the Ayase official said.

The fire was largely suppressed by about 12:45 p.m., though fire control measures continued for hours afterward, officials said.

The Yamato, Ayase and base fire departments all responded to the fire, McGough said.

Jeff Dunham raises ventriloquism's comedy voice

BY GREG BRAXTON
Los Angeles Times

In the past few years, Jeff Dunham has become something akin to a rock star. The 47-year-old entertainer routinely sells out concert halls and arenas at home and abroad, travels in a decked-out touring bus and just launched a new weekly cable television show.

He can thank a bunch of dummies with names including Bubba J, Walter and Achmed the Dead Terrorist for his success. For the first time since the heyday of Edgar Bergen and his dummy Charlie McCarthy and "The Ed Sullivan Show," nearly a half century ago, ventriloquism has moved back into the entertainment mainstream, and Dunham is leading the way.

With his tousled-hair guy-next-door look and a comedy routine that mixes raucous banter with his dummies' riffs on life, Dunham's rise has gone mostly unnoticed by the national media. When the critics bother with him, the notices are often hostile.

But according to the Forbes Celebrity 100 list of top entertainers, he earned an estimated $30 million last year, just behind Chris Rock and Jerry Seinfeld in comedy. And the October premiere of Comedy Central's "The Jeff Dunham Show," which takes his characters off the stage and "into the real world," scored the highest ratings in the cable network's history, pulling in more than 5 million viewers.

With a studied modesty, Dunham says he's living out a fantasy that began when he was 8 and got his first ventriloquist's dummy. Since then, he's matured during more than a decade on the road playing small clubs and hoping for a breakthrough.

"I saw what Edgar Bergen did and I thought, 'I want to do that,'" Dunham said. "I've always had this dream of pushing things as far as I could take them, so I'm not totally surprised by what's happening. But I never expected the international thing. We sold out this 8,000 to 9,000-seat arena in Copenhagen, where English is a second language, and people were shouting out lines for Bubba J."

He has sold more than 4 million DVDs, his "Very Special Christmas Special" set a record for ratings on Comedy Central and his clips have more than 360 million hits on YouTube.

"Jeff has brought some respectability back to an art form and craft that has been sorely lacking," said Tom Ladshaw, a ventriloquism historian and board member of the Vent Haven Museum in Fort Mitchell, Ky., which bills itself as the world's only museum devoted to the art of ventriloquism. "Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy captured the public's imagination, but with [Bergen's] passing, it fell back into obscurity."

Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, a wooden dummy with a top hat, monocle and razor-sharp wit, were a beloved act for close to three decades starting in the late 1930s, delighting audiences on radio, then movies and television. The team's popularity rivaled that of high-rolling entertainers such as Frank Sinatra and sparked numerous imitators.

But with Bergen's retirement and the decline of the television variety show in the late 1960s, ventriloquists gradually lost their mass appeal and were left to work largely in the world of children's theater and county fairs. During this fallow period, only a few like Paul Winchell, Shari Lewis and Senor Wences (known for working with faces drawn on his hand) were able to carry on the performance tradition with any fanfare.

But Dunham, growing up in Dallas, realized that speaking through a dummy gave him license to be more outspoken than he would have been on his own.

"I loved the feeling of getting away with stuff that I, Jeff, could never get away with saying," he said recently in a sitting room at home in Los Angeles, which he shares with his three daughters. He separated recently from his wife of 14 years.

Today, he talks through a crew of misfits including "white trash" beer lover Bubba J and frowning old man Walter with crossed arms and an even crosser attitude. Dunham describes his act as having "absolutely no redeeming social value whatsoever."

Most of his dozen or so characters have their own catchphrases, which audiences usually sing out like song lyrics. At the moment, the most prominent is Achmed the Dead Terrorist, a skeletal figure with egg-sized eyes, bushy eyebrows and a beard, who berates viewers: "Silence! I keel you!" (One YouTube performance clip featuring Achmed has more than 96 million views.)

Dunham's act combines his "family man next door" persona with a lineup of character dummies that edge into political incorrectness and direct their jabs at Dunham and the audience. Achmed makes crass jokes about Catholic priests and says he gets his terrorist recruits "from the suicide hot line." Angry old man Walter says he wants to be a greeter at Wal-Mart, telling customers: "Welcome to Wal-Mart. Get your ... and get out. Have a nice day."

Army tests wallpaperlike material that could keep out blast debris

By MARK ABRAMSON
Stars and Stripes

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany

One idea the Army is testing to safeguard its soldiers is a wallpaperlike material that protects building occupants from blasts.

The material is called X-Flex and it is designed to protect people inside buildings at forward operating bases and at other potential targets. X-Flex was developed by Indiana-based Berry Plastics and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Officials say X-Flex is a fiber-reinforced polymer composite designed to work as a stretch-and-catch system. It is applied to a wall's interior and then bolted to the ceiling and floor. When a blast detonates, the X-Flex stretches to absorb the blast to prevent deadly debris and shrapnel from spreading inside.

"If you get a large explosion, that wall is going to fragment and that is what is going to be your killer," said Wayne Stroupe, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Engineer Research and Development Center in Vicksburg, Miss.

X-Flex, which can hold up to the elements, mold and fungus as well as blasts, has been impressive during blast tests at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., Stroupe said.

Neither the Army Corps of Engineers nor Berry officials would disclose how big of a bomb X-Flex can protect against.

But they do say that it is easy to use.

"One of the keys for X-Flex is its simplicity and rapid application. It is very easy to apply," said Elizabeth Curran, business development manager for Berry Plastics. A wall 10-by-11 feet can be wallpapered with X-Flex in 30 minutes, she said.

X-Flex has not been used downrange, but it is ready to go and the Army Corps of Engineers is pushing for its use, Stroupe said.

Airbags with 'secret sauce' may defend against RPGs

Another idea the military is looking to improve on is airbags.

The airbag system being developed to protect vehicles from RPGs is called Tactical Rocket Propelled Airbag Protection System, or TRAPS. The Army is working with Textron Systems Corporation of Wilmington, Mass., on the project.

TRAPS uses sensors installed on a vehicle — such as a Humvee, Abrams tank, Stryker or Bradley fighting vehicle — to detect an incoming RPG, determine where it will hit and then inflate an airbag to deflect it before its round can explode. Textron officials said TRAPS could be deployed by mid-2010.

"It's an airbag plus more," said Tom McNamara, chief technology officer with Textron. "That more, which is the proprietary material, is what defeats the RPG from [exploding]."

McNamara wouldn't say what that material is — he called it the "secret sauce" — but said if an RPG hit a protected vehicle, the inflated airbag would cause it to fall to the ground and that it would not detonate.

Officials from the U.S. Army Tank Automotive Research, Development and Engineering Center in Michigan cited operational security reasons for declining to comment for this story.

Textron estimates that it would cost less than $100,000 to defend a Humvee with TRAPS and about $125,000 for an Abrams tank.

Keep debit cards safe for the holidays

EILEEN AJ CONNELLY
The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Your new frugal lifestyle is about to get tested by the biggest consumer challenge of the year—holiday shopping.

Even if you're among the thriftiest who have pared back spending and paid off debt this year, it's likely you'll open your wallet to decorate a bit and buy a few gifts in the weeks ahead. The National Retail Federation expects people to spend an average $683 on the festivities this season. That's down 3 percent from last year's $705, but it's still a substantial sum.

For many, part of the strategy for keeping on budget includes a plan to leave the credit cards at home and use a debit card at the checkout.

But before heading out to the stores with debit card in hand, make sure you understand the risks. Relying on a card that links directly to your bank accounts, and has less protection than credit, could create more financial problems than high interest rates if the card is lost or stolen. Some advocates even say you shouldn't ever carry debit cards, because they offer less protection from thieves than credit.

At the very least, you should know when and where it's not a good idea to use such a card.

Will it be easier to stick to a budget?

Debit card use was growing fast before the recession, and the downturn juiced their popularity even more. Early this year, debit passed credit cards in dollar volume spent, even though they're more often used for smaller purchases.

For many, part of the strategy for keeping on budget includes a plan to leave the credit cards at home and use a debit card at the cash register. Before you head out to the stores with debit card in hand, make sure you understand the risks.

On the practical side, you might think that a debit card will help you stay on budget, since you can't spend money you don't have in the account.

But the $35 billion banks collected in overdraft fees last year should serve as a warning that yes, you can overspend with debit purchases. The median overdraft penalty is $35, and while some banks have stopped the practice, many still allow multiple overdrafts to pile up in a single day.

Moreover, even if you don't rack up fees, it's not clear that using a debit card will help you stick to your budget. Several studies have found that carrying cash—especially large bills—helps curtail spending, but there's little evidence that translates to debit.

Is there a bigger risk if it is stolen?

Given their widespread use, it may be hard to believe debit cards generate controversy. But some advocates for the victims of identity theft warn against ever using them. That's because if you lose the card or your account is otherwise compromised, thieves could have access to your entire bank balance.

Both debit and credit cards offer protections against unauthorized use, but legally and in common practice there are more safeguards for credit card holders.

And even in cases where debit card users are protected, in some circumstances it could take nearly two weeks to get their account balance restored.

Both MasterCard and Visa pledge that customers with debit cards bearing their logos have zero liability if their accounts are misused. But those promises do not apply in all cases. For instance, MasterCard does not cover transactions that involve the use of PIN numbers, and Visa doesn't cover any ATM withdrawals, or transactions not processed by its own network.

How can I protect myself?

Card-related theft is hard to measure because banks often combine the amount with other losses. The larger problem of identity theft is likewise difficult to estimate, because of inconsistent reporting.

What is clear is that consumers can be victimized no matter where they use their cards—in person or online.

If you decide to use a debit card for holiday spending, it's important to keep close tabs on your card and your accounts to reduce the chances that you'll become a victim—or to catch a problem early.

Keep these tips in mind:

1. Empty your wallet. Pickpocketing increases during the holidays. Make sure you aren't carrying any cards you don't need, and keep those at home in a secure location, like a locked desk drawer or home safe.

2. Don't let your card out of your sight. Don't use your debit card in places like restaurants or bars, where it's taken away to process the transaction, said Jennifer Leuer, general manager of ProtectMyID.com. There's a bigger chance that it could be put through a "skimmer," a device thieves use to read the information on the card, if you can't see what's happening, she said.

Even when a purchase is handled in front of you, make sure you keep a close eye on the clerk and be alert for unusual behavior like multiple swipes of your card.

3. Be cautious when using ATMs. Freestanding, nonbank ATMs are more vulnerable than those located at bank branches, especially those that are not in major chain stores. And even bank machines can have skimming devices attached. These devices vary from plastic gadgets slipped on top of the card slot to fake keypads that are almost impossible to detect. If something seems unusual, don't use the machine.

4. Be on guard online. Experts are mixed on whether shopping online is safe.

If you haven't updated your computer's security lately, you're definitely taking unnecessary chances.

Make sure your security software is up-to-date, and avoid shopping on sites that don't have a bright green banner in the address bar when you're checking out. That green banner indicates the site meets the industry standard for online safety.

5. Check your account balances frequently. It's hard to prevent fraud from occurring, but vigilance can catch a problem before it balloons out of control, said Robert Reh, chief information officer for Nassau Financial Federal Credit Union in Westbury, N.Y.

If there are suspect transactions, contact your bank or credit union right away. You're more likely to be covered for any fraudulent activity if you report it quickly.

OPINION

Photographic memory: A picture can lie

By GEORGE F. WILL

NEW YORK

The 20th century was 100 years of amplitude. It overflowed with barbarous fighting faiths, wars enveloping continents, and graphic journalism assaulting global audiences with scenes of shocking immediacy. The Spanish Civil War, although small in terms of the number of combatants, was perhaps the century's emblematic conflict. As a rehearsal for the Second World War, Spain's agony became a proxy struggle between fascism and communism, with democracy crushed in the middle. And for perhaps the first time, pictures supplemented and sometimes supplanted words as primary shapers of opinion about a conflict.

According to Robert Hughes, author of "The Shock of the New" (1980), during World War I's nation-shattering and culture-shredding carnage, no photograph of a dead soldier appeared in a German, French or British newspaper. But the Sept. 23, 1936, issue of the French magazine Vu published (as did Life magazine 10 months later) what became perhaps the century's iconic photograph — "Falling Soldier" (seen above). It was taken by, and launched the remarkable career of, a 22-year-old Hungarian refugee from fascism, photographer

Robert Capa.

It supposedly shows a single figure, a loyalist — that is, anti-fascist — soldier, at the instant of death from a bullet fired by one of Franco's soldiers. The soldier is falling backward on a hillside, arms outstretched, his rifle being flung from his right hand. This was, surely, stunning testimony to photography's consciousness-raising and history-shaping truth-telling, the camera's indisputable accuracy, its irreducibly factual rendering of reality, its refutation of epistemological pessimism about achieving certainty based on what our eyes tell us.

Probably not. A dispute that has flared intermittently for more than 30 years has been fueled afresh, and perhaps settled, by a Spanish professor who has established that the photo could not have been taken when and where it reportedly was — Sept. 5, 1936, near Cerro Muriano.

The photo was taken about 35 miles from there. The precise place has been determined by identifying the mountain range in the photo's background. The professor says there was no fighting near there at that time, and concludes that Capa staged the photo.

Could an alternative explanation be that a single fascist sniper fired the fatal shot while some loyalists were at rest? No. What was once thought to be blood spurting from the falling soldier's skull is actually a tassel on his cap. And Capa several times said the soldier was felled by machine-gun fire. In a slightly less dramatic photo of another falling soldier, taken by Capa at the same time — the cloud configuration is the same as in "Falling Soldier" — the soldier falls on the same spot.

In 1995, the controversy seemed to have been settled in Capa's favor when the fallen soldier supposedly was identified as Federico Borrell Garcia, an anarchist militiaman. But a 2007 Spanish documentary included a written eyewitness account of Borrell dying many miles away, behind a tree. There are no trees in the many pictures Capa took when he took "Falling Soldier."

The coolly analytic professionals at the International Center of Photography in midtown Manhattan, which has the Capa archives, are commendably dispassionate about the "Falling Soldier" controversy. They also avoid postmodern mush, such as: All photographs are manipulative fabrications because the photographer chooses to point the camera here and not there, and, anyway, "Falling Soldier" is "basically" truthful because it illustrates the "essential truth" about war.

Capa was a man of the left and "Falling Soldier" helped to alarm the world about fascism rampant. But noble purposes do not validate misrepresentations. Richard Whelan, Capa's biographer, calls it "trivializing" to insist on knowing whether this photo actually shows a soldier mortally wounded. Whelan says "the picture's greatness actually lies in its symbolic implications, not in its literal accuracy."

Rubbish. The picture's greatness evaporates if its veracity is fictitious. To argue otherwise is to endorse high-minded duplicity — and to trivialize Capa, who saw a surfeit of 20th-century war and neither flinched from its horrors nor retreated into an "I am a camera" detachment. As a warning about well-meaning falsifications of history, "Falling Soldier" matters because Capa probably fabricated reality to serve what he called "concerned photography." But this, too, matters:

There was the integrity of constant bravery in Capa's life, which was a headlong rush toward danger. He arrived on Omaha Beach with the first soldiers early on June 6, 1944, and was only 40 in 1954 when, on the move with French troops in Vietnam, he stepped on a land mine.

Creating jobs a tougher slog than reaching summit

By ANN McFEATTERS

Scripps Howard News Service

There is something about that familiar phrase, "White House summit," that induces mental fatigue and makes you realize we're in trouble.

Before leaving for a trip through many time zones to Asia, standing in front of a portrait of George Washington, President Barack Obama announced that he is planning a jobs summit to be held at the White House sometime next month.

In a three-minute statement, just days after we learned the official jobless rate is 10.2 percent, highest in 26 years, and 10 months after taking office, Obama said it is incumbent on him to try anything he can think of to put 16 million Americans back to work.

So it came to him, he said, that CEOs, small-business owners, economists, labor union representatives, leaders of nonprofit institutions and financial experts (if any can be found) should get together over coffee and brainstorm how to create jobs.

The key is how to do this in a climate in which an American who loses his or her job today has a smaller chance of getting a new one than at any time in modern record-keeping. It's a climate in which employer-provided health care costs are expected to rise 160 percent in 10 years. Currently, Obama said, employers are making do with temps and forcing current employees to work harder for lower wages but are not willing to hire more full-time employees.

In fairness, all presidents sooner or later decide to hold summits. Usually, the summits are on education or global warming or trade or male pattern baldness. Very, very seldom (never?) do they result in concrete action, a better society or even any basic agreement. But presidents are always thinking of their legacy, and there is no such thing as a presidency without a few White House summits.

Obama, by some counts, has held or attended a dozen summits in the past 10 months. This is the same principle as appointing a White House czar for such problems as illegal drug use, soaring health care costs, energy independence, climate change, government regulations, lack of intelligence. At last count there were 28 czars in the Obama White House.

At the end of the jobs summit, where White House aides will carefully screen all the remarks beforehand, Obama will thank the participants from the bottom of his heart and announce that he has been given a lot to think about. (He said he is looking for "any demonstrably good idea" but realizes sometimes it's not good for the government to act and sometimes it is.)

The summiteers will depart for home in a glow and wake up the next morning thinking, "What was that all about?"

Obama says he wants more American innovation and less consumption by Americans although our consumption fueled the global economy. (So much for former President George W. Bush's advice to go shopping after 9/11 and Obama's Cash for Clunkers program — which was supposed to make us buy new cars to help the Big Three automakers, although we mostly bought Toyotas.)

And while global trade is shrinking at its fastest pace in 80 years, Obama also hopes more Pacific Rim countries will buy more American goods, such as aircraft engines, Etch-a-Sketches, DVDs and wine refrigerators.

Obama insisted he has taken steps, such as bailing out banks, that have "broken the back" of the recession. But he added that while the economy is growing again, this has not translated into an end to job losses month after month.

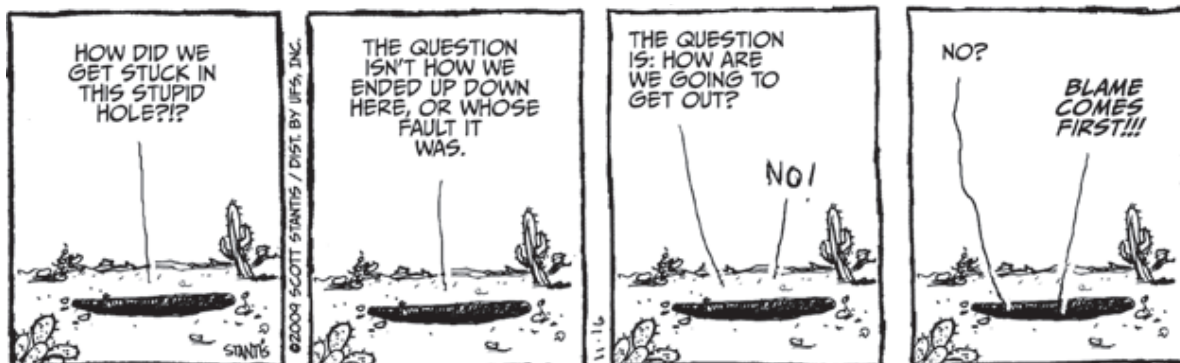

It is one of those weird things about politics: Despite what they say, presidents have very little power to create jobs or boost the economy short of pushing Congress to spend money and pass stimulus bills. But they always get blamed if people are unhappy about the economy for very long.

Sadly, at election time, people don't remember the president's summits.

Scripps Howard columnist Ann McFeatters has covered the White House and national politics since 1986.

Officers: Pilot tried to hit us with plane

GA GRIFFIN — Police said a pilot tried to hit officers with his plane at a small Georgia airport.

Authorities said Dan Wayne Gryder was jailed and charged with two counts of aggravated assault.

Griffin police investigator Bryan Clanton told the Atlanta Journal-Constitution that Gryder, 48, was driving his car across the runway at Griffin-Spalding Airport. Officers tried to issue him tickets, but he boarded the small plane without signing.

Police said he threatened to strike officers with the plane. Police said deputies flooded the area and ordered him to stop but he continued to taxi.

Schools sorry for movie-shoot diversion

OH BELLAIRE — Ohio parents who said their children endured long, complicated walks home are panning the disruption of school bus service for a Hollywood movie shoot.

Scenes for a new Denzel Washington movie called "Unstoppable" are being filmed in Bellaire in eastern Ohio, southeast of Cleveland.

Parents said children were dropped off at a shopping plaza when the filming kept a bus from completing its route. Gregory Jeffreys said his daughter, 12, wasn't sure how to walk home and it took her an hour. He said children were in danger.

The Bellaire school system has apologized. Superintendent Tony Scott said the district should have notified parents about the bus diversion but "dropped the ball."

Public housing fire kills mother, 3 children

CT BRIDGEPORT — Officials in the state of Connecticut said a fire at a public housing complex has killed a mother and her three children.

Firefighters said they responded to the P.T. Barnum complex in Bridgeport and pulled the four victims from an apartment.

Officials told WTNH-TV that a mother, her 4-year-old twins and her child, 5, all died.

Their names weren't released.

Firefighters contained the blaze to the one apartment.

State fire marshals have been called to the scene to help city authorities with the investigation. The cause of fire wasn't clear.

San Diego Great Dane named tallest dog

CA LOS ANGELES — A dog named Titan lived up to his name when he earned the title world's tallest dog.

It was one of more than 30 records announced on the official Guinness World Record Day — but the only animal to be honored.

The 4-year-old white Great Dane from San Diego is blind, deaf, epileptic and undergoes acupuncture and chiropractic adjustments every three weeks, owner Diana Taylor said.

"Titan is magical," she added. "He's low-key, calm and has a wonderful demeanor about him."

AMERICAN ROUNDUP

He gets along with all dogs, even the tiny ones."

The massive canine is often mistaken by young children for a horse or cow.

Titan's official height, as measured by a veterinarian, is a hair over 3 feet tall from floor to shoulder.

You could add 8 inches if official measurements included the head. Titan weighs 190 pounds.

Christmas tree going up in Rockefeller Center

NY NEW YORK — A 76-foot Norway spruce is getting ready for its close-up, just blocks from the Broadway theater district.

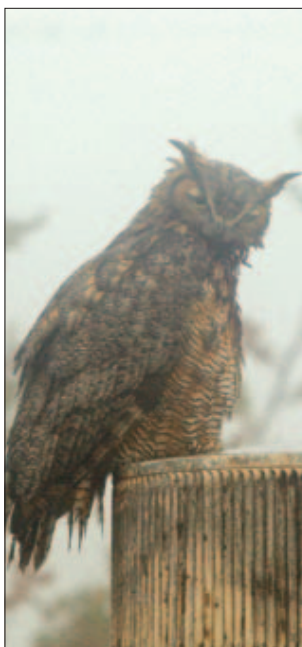

Crews cut down the 10-ton tree at the Easton, Conn., home of school teacher Maria Corti.

It will soon be hoisted into place in Manhattan's Rockefeller Center. It will stand next to the famous skating rink and a gilded statue depicting Prometheus bringing fire to mankind.

The lighting ceremony is Dec. 2.

The first Rockefeller Center Christmas tree was put up in 1931 by workers building the complex during the Depression. The first official tree lighting there was in 1933.

Last year's tree, also a Norway spruce, came from Hamilton, N.J.

2 kids stabbed in Texas home

TX HOUSTON — A stabbing at a home in the Houston area sent two children to a hospital.

The Harris County Sheriff's Office said an adult who had been watching the children was detained.

Lt. Jesse Inocencio said the victims, a girl who is 9 and a boy who is 10, had been stabbed multiple times and were transported to a hospital.

Names and conditions of the victims were not immediately released.

Seattle man who shot state official's son dies

WA SEATTLE — The man who shot the son of Washington Lt. Gov. Brad Owen's has died.

Carlos Fernandez died at Harborview Medical Center, hospital spokeswoman Susan Gregg-Hanson said.

Fernandez was accused of shooting Mark Owen, 37, who was discharged. Owen was a partner with Fernandez in a paint and body shop for semi-trucks, KBP & Fabrications.

Kent police said Fernandez, 63, shot Owen during an argument then shot himself in the head. Brad Owen said his son has worked for Fernandez for about three years, recently becoming a business partner.

The lieutenant governor said the two had a rocky relationship.

26 rare whooping cranes at refuge

TX AUSTWELL — Specialists at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas expect at least 247 endangered whooping cranes to spend the winter.

A count announced recently said 26 cranes had arrived.

Refuge specialist Vicki Muller said the migration count includes 24 adults and two chicks.

Experts at the Aransas refuge said the plumage of the creatures appears white and in good condition, which can indicate the health of the birds.

Man accused of bilking millions in Ponzi scheme

CO DENVER — A Denver man defrauded people in a national Ponzi scheme involving more than $12 million that was supposed to go real estate investments, the Colorado securities commissioner alleged.

Investigators contend Jerrald Green, 48, used investors' money to buy condos for himself in downtown Denver and to open two brokerage accounts, which incurred substantial losses.

Commissioner Fred J. Joseph said in a complaint filed in Denver District Court that Green received $12.5 million from investors, but only about $4.9 million of those funds were invested. Green used money from new investors to pay old investors, Joseph said.

A judge granted the commissioner's request to freeze Green's assets. Green denied the allegations and said it's all a misunderstanding.

14 passengers thrown from rolling vehicle

OR PORTLAND — Nearly everyone aboard a van carrying 16 Colorado church group members was likely thrown from the vehicle when it rolled on an icy Oregon highway and killed two people, according to state police.

The 14 college-age survivors were all injured, some critically, as the van veered out of control and rolled on Interstate 84 near Baker City in eastern Oregon.

Their church, the New Life Worship Center in Federal Heights, Colo., has held a candlelight vigil and set up a fund at a local bank to help the families.

Joshua John Pischura, 20, of Geneva, Ohio, died shortly after the crash, while Taune Nicole Winter Pepper, 23, of Deer Trail, Colo., died after being flown to a Boise, Idaho hospital, authorities said.

Five other passengers with serious or critical injuries were also flown to Boise. Three were taken to a hospital in La Grande, Ore.; and six were treated at St. Elizabeth Health Services in Baker City and released, Oregon State Police said.

Woman mistakenly hits gas, strikes nail salon

CT MILFORD — Connecticut authorities said a car smashed through the front windows of a nail salon and ended up halfway into the shop, injuring eight people.

Police said a woman who was driving the Honda Civic apparently hit the accelerator instead of the brakes and the car plowed into Sun Nails in Milford.

Authorities said three people were hospitalized in fair condition, while a fourth person was in stable condition. The other victims were treated for minor injuries.

The names of the driver and the victims were not released.

Witnesses said the most seriously injured victim was a salon employee who was sitting behind the front desk. They said she was pinned against a wall when the car hit the desk.

Man blames $1M wreck on distraction by bird

TX LA MARQUE — Police said a low-flying pelican distracted a driver in Texas, causing him to veer off a road and drive his million-dollar sports car into a salt marsh.

La Marque police Lt. Greg Gilchrist said the man claimed he lost concentration while driving his French-built Bugatti Veyron because the bird swooped into sight. Gilchrist said the driver dropped his phone, reached down to pick it up and strayed into the brackish water in La Marque, about 35 miles southeast of Houston.

Gilchrist does not know if the car can be salvaged but said that “salt water isn’t good for anything.”

He said the man, whose identity has not been released, was not injured in the accident.

Panel reverses decision to deport two brothers

MI DETROIT — Two Detroit-area brothers who fled from Yemen after one of them married the daughter of a powerful general have persuaded a federal appeals court to let them stay in the United States.

The court said the men could be killed if they are deported. A three-judge panel reversed a decision by an immigration board.

It was forbidden love and a cultural feud that brought the brothers to the U.S. A high-ranking general in Yemen refused to bless the marriage of his daughter to one of the men because he was associated with the meat-cutting class.

The brothers and the bride entered the United States in 1999. She is not facing deportation. The Associated Press is not identifying them because they fear their family could be persecuted in Yemen.

Sheriff: Woman faked cancer to get implants

TX WACO — Authorities said a Texas woman lied about having breast cancer and spent $10,000 raised at a benefit to have her breasts enlarged.

McLennan County sheriff’s investigator James Pack said in court records that 24-year-old Trista Joy Lathern shaved her head to look like a cancer patient undergoing chemotherapy.

Pack said Lathern wanted breast implants to try to save her seven-month marriage.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported that Lathern is charged with theft by deception. Sheriff’s officials and Lathern’s attorney didn’t immediately return phone calls from The Associated Press.

Missing college student may have hitchhiked

VA RICHMOND — Virginia State Police said they believe a Virginia Tech student missing for nearly a month was hitchhiking after she left a Metallica concert.

Police said witnesses saw a woman fitting the description of 20-year-old Morgan Dana Harrington on a bridge trying to get a ride.

Harrington became separated from her friends after she left the Charlottesville concert arena and was denied re-entry. She told them she would find a way home.

Police said they want to hear from anyone who might have loaned a cell phone to a woman fitting Harrington’s description.

Police said Harrington was wearing a distinctive necklace made of large crystal chain links.

Town’s new name wins out over old

NJ WOODLAND PARK — A decades-long conflict among residents of a small New Jersey community over what their town should be called has been resolved — for now, at least.

The borough of Woodland Park — formerly known as West Paterson — sealed its new name in a referendum on Nov. 3. A final count of provisional ballots found voters chose to keep the name by a 32-vote margin.

Proponents of the name change think it more accurately describes the bucolic suburban feel of the community, which has a population of around 12,000 and is just 15 miles west of Manhattan. Its many parks are home to deer, wild turkeys and other animals and are popular among bird watchers.

Horoscope

The night will be extremely dark, and some will call it spooky. The darkest hour is what's necessary to bring on the dawn of your new self. It's the Scorpio new moon, a lunar event that evokes the powers of transformation. Is there someone you want to be, but you haven't had the strength to change yet? Call on the moon to aid your transition.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 16). Your expectations are high for this year, and you'll be able to meet them. You want the love and loyalty of certain people in your circle, and you'll get it in January. You realize your leadership potential in March. Spring brings an improvement in your professional scene and probably a new cast of characters, too. Aries and Virgo people adore you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Life will be much less stressful for you in the week ahead. You are being pulled along by a destiny that is yours for the taking. Keep your attention on the present, and pretend to be surprised when the rewards roll in.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Just when you think you can't go another step, you always manage to reach deep down into yourself and pull out that last ounce of determination. This is what sets you apart!

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You will be strictly focused and then suddenly run out of steam. That's when it's time to wander around. No agendas, nothing to gain or lose — just a quick injection of some focused randomness. You'll be surprised at what you learn.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You are particularly sensitive today. Kind words are extra-warming; mean words cut more deeply. Thankfully, the people around you are perceptive enough to see that your tender heart is what makes you so loveable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You don't have to try to be an asset to your fellow humans. Your keen intuition and easy way with words combine to do great good. The lighthearted compliment you give without thinking means the world to its recipient.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Listening is a refined art. Become a better listener and the improvements in your social life will be immediate. When you close your eyes, your hearing improves. Try it as an exercise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You have a vague suspicion that someone is helping you behind the scenes. You don't know who it is, but you get the sense that the wheels of motion are spinning in your favor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Sometimes you can get away with sending a sub in your place, but not today.

There's not a friend, family member or colleague who will be able to do what needs to be done by you. Show up where you're needed and expected.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You love to make people happy, but unfortunately, the only way to really do this for the long term is to deliver some not so happy truths in the moment. Don't worry. You'll say what needs saying in the coolest way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll be asked to commit to something, and it's a bit scary. Your bottom-line answer is "yes," although you'll probably be going in circles for a while before you settle there. It's important to be sure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll be gathering facts. What do they add up to? What are you looking for or trying to prove? The answers to those questions will be elusive. For now, just call it "basic research" and enjoy the learning process.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It will help you to understand the true nature of those around you. You'll get to know one person better this afternoon. Observe how this person treats the people he or she perceives as underlings.

Wife draws the line on smoking

Dear Abby: My wife of 25 years, in an effort to get me to stop smoking, refuses to have sex until I quit. It's been more than a year since we made love.

I love my wife with all my heart, and I always will. I plan to stop smoking, but not this way. She will not give in (or give out). I don't want to think of sex as her weapon, but it is. Any advice on how to cope with my unwinnable battle?

—Desperate in Arlington, Texas
Dear Desperate: Yes. You mentioned you plan to quit smoking, so why not start now? The letter below could have been written expressly for you. Read on:

Dear Abby: On Thursday, Nov. 19, 2009, the American Cancer Society is celebrating the 34th Great American Smokeout, and we want to encourage your readers who smoke to quit. Research shows that smokers who quit can significantly increase their life expectancy.

A smoker who quits at age 35 gains an average of eight years of life expectancy. A person who quits at 55 gains five more birthdays to spend with loved ones.

Smokers who stop before age 50 cut their risk of dying in the next 15 years in half compared with people who continue to smoke. Ten years after quitting, the lung cancer death rate is about half of that of someone who continues.

Quitting smoking is not easy. People often have to try several times before they are successful. But the American Cancer Society is here to help. We have been making great progress in this country when it comes to people getting the message about not smoking—in fact, adult cigarette smoking declined to 19.8 percent in 2007.

Smokers who want to quit can call the society's Quit for Life program operated and managed by Free & Clear at (800) 227-2345 to speak with trained counselors.

National Volunteer President,
American Cancer Society

Dear Dr. Thorson And Dear Readers: I am pleased to once again spread the word about the Great American Smokeout, a subject that has appeared in this column many times.

Tobacco use remains the single largest preventable cause of death in the U.S., and one-third of all cancer deaths could be prevented if people simply avoided tobacco.

The Great American Smokeout Web site (www.cancer.org/GreatAmericans) contains user-friendly tips and tools to help smokers quit.

Letters for this column—with your name and phone number—should be addressed to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles CA 90069. Readers can write to Abby on the Internet at <http://www.ueexpress.com/dearabby>

ADVANCE THROUGH THE RANKS

Built on a 120-year tradition, Troy University has actively supported the military community for more than 50 years.

The U.S. Army has created one of the most innovative programs for higher education in the world – GoArmyEd/eArmyU. TROY empowers GoArmyEd/eArmyU, military, traditional and non-traditional students to reach their academic goals by removing accessibility, geographical and time concerns.

No wonder TROY was recently named a Top 10 Most Popular University by Military Times and rated a Military Friendly School by G.I. Jobs. TROY has been ranked by The Princeton Review as a Best School in the Southeast for five consecutive years and is the top-ranked public university in the State of Alabama according to Forbes magazine.

TROY offers an extensive selection of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in business, computer science, political science, social science, criminal justice and healthcare. Our degree programs are offered online through Troy University's eCampus.

Choose from our variety of degree programs, offered at affordable tuition rates.

Sports briefs

Hornaday wins record fourth title in trucks

The Associated Press

AVONDALE, Ariz. — Ron Hornaday won a NASCAR-record fourth Trucks Series championship with a fourth-place finish at Phoenix International Raceway.

Hornaday, 51, started Friday night's race with a 197-point lead over Matt Crafton, and needed to finish ahead of Crafton to lock up the title.

Hornaday did it by overcoming an early pit-road penalty, giving him his first championship since 2007. Hornaday also won titles in 1996 and 1998, and finished second last season. Crafton finished the race in eighth. The race was won by Kevin Harvick, owner of Hornaday's truck team. Kyle Busch finished second, snapping his five-race winning streak.

In other auto racing news:

■ Martin Truex Jr. won the pole at Phoenix International Raceway. Truex turned a lap at 135.120 mph Friday to qualify first for Sunday's Sprint Cup race at PIR in his No. 1 Chevrolet. His lap bested Kurt Busch, who qualified second at 134.579 mph in the No. 2 Dodge. Defending three-time series champion Jimmie Johnson qualified third, and was followed by Kasey Kahne and Denny Hamlin. Mark Martin, who trails Johnson by 71 points in the standings with two races remaining, qualified 10th.

■ The U.S. Army will continue to sponsor drivers in NASCAR and the NHRA next season. The Army will be the primary sponsor for Ryan Newman in the Sprint Cup series and Tony Schumacher in drag racing's Top Fuel division. Tony Schumacher has won five consecutive championships for the U.S. Army and is leading the points race. The Army is permitted to sign only 1-year sponsorship agreements.

Cutler fined $20K for conduct toward game official

CHICAGO — Chicago Bears quarterback Jay Cutler was fined $20,000 by the NFL on Friday for abusive conduct toward a game official during a 41-21 loss to the Arizona Cardinals last Sunday.

Cutler drew an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty after an incomplete pass to tight end Greg Olsen on fourth down with the Bears trailing 34-7. Cutler apparently thought there should have been an interference penalty.

Defensive lineman Tommie Harris also was fined $7,500 for punching Cardinals offensive lineman Deuce Lutui. Harris was ejected and later apologized.

In other NFL news:

■ Houston Texans safety Eugene Wilson was fined $5,000 for hitting Baltimore Colts tight end Dallas Clark during last week-end's game. Wilson was penalized for unnecessary roughness for the hit, which came in the second quarter and the Colts leading 13-0. The NFL said Friday that Wilson hit a defenseless receiver.

DODEA PACIFIC FAR EAST TOURNAMENTS

Kadena claims Class AA football crown in runaway

No. 7 CAJ wins AA volleyball title

By DAVE ORNAUER
Stars and Stripes

CAMP FOSTER, Okinawa — After losing in heartbreaking fashion in two previous Far East Class AA football title clashes with Seoul American, Kadena left nothing to chance in Saturday's third encounter.

Shariff Coleman and Thomas McDonald each scored two touchdowns, and the Panther defense held the Falcons to 21 yards and two first downs in a 44-0 romp over Seoul American at Kubasaki High School's Mike Petty Stadium on Camp Foster.

It was sweet redemption for Kadena, which lost at Seoul American 12-6 in overtime in the 2006 title game and 22-21 last November, when the Falcons stopped a two-point conversion try on the game's final play.

"The kids didn't forget what happened last year," coach Sergio Mendoza said. "We were committed. We saw that commitment all the way through. It's exciting. I'm proud of them. This is probably the best team in the Pacific and certainly the best team I've ever coached."

The commitment Mendoza mentioned was the players as one enduring grueling weight and conditioning workouts lasting as long as 3½ hours during the beastly summer months.

"After a time, it didn't seem worth it, but after winning a Far East championship, it's worth it," senior center Tyler Broome said. "We got a shot at glory and took it all the way. I'm glad to go out this way."

Right from the opening kickoff, it appeared things would go Kadena's way. Seoul American won the pregame coin toss and opted to kick off; Kadena's Rodney Goodson promptly ran it back 79 yards for a touchdown.

"He set the tone," McDonald said. "After that, pretty much everything put itself in place and we kept the tone going. The line did its job and it feels good knowing you're going to be protected by that line."

Coleman and McDonald each added two first-half TDs, triggering a running clock from 3:20 into the second quarter until game's end. Stanley Schrock ran 13 yards for a third-quarter score, and Anthony Tarver tackled Seoul punter Han Yoo in the end zone for a fourth-quarter safety.

"Kadena could do no wrong. Kadena was firing on all cylinders," Falcons coach Alan Morton said. "We got outplayed. Our lack of experience haunted us."

With four of five backs and five of seven linemen returning, it might be just the beginning for Kadena. "The start of a rerun," McDonald said.

In the third-place game, Rainey Daley, Gerald McCloud and DeEric Harvin, finally healthy after nursing injuries all of last month, each ran for a touchdown as Yokota rallied from a 7-0 first-period deficit to down Guam High 24-7.

Jason Brunson caught a 12-yard touchdown pass from Aaron Casey on the game's first series, an 80-yard, 16-play drive in 8:05, but Yokota's defense held Guam High to 84 yards after that.

Daley ran 13 times for 88 yards, McCloud 14 for 56 and Bradley Forbes 12-for-57. Brunson compiled 114 yards of total offense for Guam High.

CAJ spikers become lowest seed to capture Class AA title

ANDERSEN AIR FORCE BASE, Guam — As just the No. 7 seed entering last week's single-elimination playoffs, few, even coach Tanya Hall, expected Christian Academy In Japan to capture its third Far East Class AA Volleyball Tournament title in five years.

Yet the Knights made history in beating Faith Academy in Saturday's title match 20-25, 25-23, 25-22, 25-23. They're the lowest seed to win the title since the 1995 inception of the three-day dual pool and division play format to seed teams into the elimination round.

"I'm in shock that my girls could do this, but it was awesome," said Hall, who won her fourth Class AA title overall since 2001. "Our girls pulled it together. ... It's fun to be an underdog, with nobody expecting you to win and then go take it all."

Seoul American, the No. 1 seed in the playoffs, captured third place by downing Guam champion George Washington 25-14, 25-17. "They know what level they have to be," coach Denny Hilgar said. "We made a statement that Seoul American is ready to come back now. It's a match they totally dominated. I'm happy."

Japan and Kanto Plain champion Nile C. Kinnick, which beat CAJ twice in the regular season, fell to sixth place, losing to Seisen International 22-25, 25-23, 15-8; Kinnick also beat Seisen twice during the season.

Caps win, lose Knuble to injury

Right wing breaks finger, will miss 3 to 4 weeks after surgery

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Just as Alex Ovechkin is about to return, Mike Knuble breaks a finger and will be sidelined three to four weeks.

Time for a pity party for the Washington Capitals? Of course not. They've won four straight, have sole possession of first place in the Eastern Conference and lead their division by nine points.

The Capitals beat the Minnesota Wild 3-1 on Friday night, again displaying the type of balanced attack that has kept the team successful during five games without its two-time reigning league MVP. Ovechkin is due back any day from his upper-body injury — perhaps as early as Saturday night at New Jersey — and it'll be a timely return given what happened to Knuble in the first period against the Wild.

With the Capitals on a power play, defenseman Marek Zidlicky sent Knuble hurdling over goalie Josh Harding and into Minnesota's net. Knuble skated straight to the locker room and did not return. The team announced he will have surgery but did not say which finger was broken.

Asked if Knuble's injury will speed up Ovechkin's return, coach Bruce Boudreau shrugged and said: "I don't know yet. I've got to talk to the powers-that-be."

Knuble has five goals and 10 assists this season. He was one of Washington's major free-agent acquisitions, signing a two-year, $5.6 million deal in July.

But the Capitals are playing well no matter who is missing. On Friday, Mike Green scored a power-play goal in the second period, Brian Pothier got the go-ahead score early in the third, and Brooks Laich added an empty-netter in the final minute.

Thrashers 7, Kings 0: Ilya Kovalchuk and Maxim Afinogenov each had two goals and two assists for host Atlanta, and Ondrej Pavelec made 38 saves for his first career shutout.

Thrashers rookie Evander Kane, the fourth overall draft pick, also scored two goals and had an assist. Kovalchuk, who returned the night before in New York from a broken bone in his foot that sidelined him for three weeks, has seven points in the last two games.

Zach Bogosian also scored to help Atlanta win its third straight game.

Sabres 2, Flames 1 (SO): Jason Pominville scored the winner in the fourth round of the shootout, and Ryan Miller made 25 saves for host Buffalo.

Pominville beat Miikka Kiprusoff with a wrist shot that went between the goalie's legs. Miller then stopped Rene Bourque's attempt to secure the bonus point.

Derek Roy scored in regulation for the Sabres. Daymond Langkow scored for Calgary, and Kiprusoff made 32 saves. The Flames had won four straight.

Blue Jackets 3, Ducks 2 (SO): Rick Nash scored the shootout winner and also had a goal in regulation for host Columbus, and Mathieu Garon stopped both Anaheim shooters in the tiebreaker after making 32 saves in regulation and overtime.

Kristian Huselius also scored in the shootout and had a goal and an assist for Columbus, which rebounded from a 9-1 loss to Detroit on Wednesday night.

Bobby Ryan and Todd Marchant scored for Anaheim.

Islanders 4, Hurricanes 3 (OT): At Raleigh, N.C., Kyle Okposo scored with 14.4 second left in overtime, and rookie John Tavares had his first two-goal game to help New York extend Carolina's winless streak to 14 games — matching the franchise record.

Mark Streit added a goal, and Martin Biron made 25 saves for New York. Tuomo Ruutu, Ray Whitney and Tim Gleason scored for Carolina.

Blackhawks 3, Maple Leafs 2: Patrick Kane scored an early unassisted goal, and Cristobal Huet made 29 saves in Chicago's third straight victory and sixth in a row at home.

Troy Brouwer and Duncan Keith also scored for Chicago.

Phil Kessel had two goals for Toronto.

Galaxy headed to final

The Associated Press

CARSON, Calif. — Gregg Berhalter and Landon Donovan scored in overtime to put the Los Angeles Galaxy into the MLS Cup final with a 2-0 victory over the Houston Dynamo on Friday night.

The Galaxy will play in their first MLS Cup final since 2005 on Nov. 22 in Seattle against Chicago or Real Salt Lake.

Los Angeles will make its sixth MLS Cup final appearance since the league began in 1996. The Galaxy won championships in 2002 and 2005.

David Beckham's free kick set up Berhalter's goal in the 102nd minute. The Dynamo's Eddie Robinson tried to clear Omar Gonzalez's header off Beckham's free kick but Berhalter poked the ball into the net from 7 yards.

Donovan converted a penalty kick in the 109th minute.

Houston's Ricardo Clark tripped Alan Gordon in the penalty area. After goalkeeper Pat Onstad dove to his left, Donovan scored his third goal in this year's playoffs.

The Dynamo's Brian Ching headed a 7-yard line drive off Brian Mullan's right-wing cross but goalkeeper Donovan Ricketts used his right hand to deflect the ball off the crossbar.

Houston's Andrew Hainault scored on a header off Brad Davis' ensuing corner kick in the 80th minute but Luis Angel Landin's foul before Hainault's shot nullified the goal.

Jhamar Youngblood is all smiles as he dribbles away the final seconds of Rider's 88-74 upset of No. 18 Mississippi State.

Miss. St. shocked by Rider

By CHRIS TALBOTT
The Associated Press

STARKVILLE, Miss. — Mississippi State had the flashy ranking and shiny new Southeastern Conference championship rings. Rider had a chip on its shoulder.

Mike Ringgold and Novar Gadson scored 21 points each as the Broncos pulled off the first big upset of the season, 88-74 over the No. 18 Bulldogs on Friday night. "This is Rider," Mississippi State forward Kodi Augustus said. "Preseason ranked No. 18 in the country, we're not supposed to lose our first game, home opener. Wow. It's crazy."

The Broncos, who return four starters from a squad that won 19 games, proved they're just as talented and didn't wilt after Mississippi State got off to an 11-2 lead.

"They were a little shellshocked early that we were able to compete with them," Rider coach Tommy Dempsey said. "We didn't feel like there was a big difference in our talent level and theirs."

Rider drove to the basket relentlessly despite the presence of Jarvis Varnado, the nation's leading shot-blocker last season. Varnado had seven blocks to go with 22 points and 14 rebounds, but Rider overcame him by hitting 62.5 percent of its three-point shots to knock off lifeless Mississippi State on the night the Bulldogs raised the banner from their 2008-09 SEC championship.

The Broncos scored 18 points off 10 turnovers and took a 47-45 halftime lead they'd hold thereafter.

Ryan Thompson scored 16 points and Justin Robinson 15 for Rider. The 6-foot-7 Gadson had 11 rebounds as Rider, despite the 6-9 Varnado, outrebounded the Bulldogs 38-37.

Rider was challenged just once in the final 20 minutes, when Barry Stewart hit a three-pointer and Varnado a short jumper midway through the second half to cut Rider's lead to 60-55.

Rider answered with an 11-3 burst highlighted by two three-pointers by Thompson.

A fresh start

Calipari wins first as Kentucky bids for return to hoops heights

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Freshman Eric Bledsoe scored 24 points while starting in place of fellow freshman John Wall as fourth-ranked Kentucky opened the John Calipari era with a 75-59 victory over Morehead State on Friday night.

Patrick Patterson added 20 points — including his first career three-pointer — to go with 12 rebounds, and Darnell Dodson had 15 points as Kentucky pulled away in the second half.

Kenneth Faried led Morehead State with 17 points, but the defending Ohio Valley Conference champions couldn't keep up even with Wall on the bench. The highly touted recruit sat out as part of an NCAA suspension for accepting improper benefits from his AAU coach.

Wall is expected to play Monday when the Wildcats host Miami (Ohio).

No. 1 Kansas 101, Hofstra 65: Xavier Henry hit five three-pointers and scored 27 points to set a school freshman record as the Jayhawks wore down overmatched Hofstra. Sherron Collins had 23 points and Cole Aldrich 11 points and eight rebounds in Kansas' 42nd straight home victory.

No. 2 Michigan St. 97, Florida Gulf Coast 58: Kalin Lucas scored 21 points and Durrell Summers had 14 of his 17 in the first half for the host Spartans.

Summers' go-ahead dunk on an alley-oop sparked a 17-4 run that put Michigan State in control. The Spartans have won 40 in a row at home over nonconference teams.

No. 5 Villanova 84, Fairleigh Dickinson 61: Corey Stokes scored 20 points and Corey Fisher 13 as the Wildcats overcame a sloppy first half and a poor game from Scottie Reynolds. Reynolds managed just eight points on 2-of-10 shooting for host Villanova, which is coming off a trip to the Final Four.

No. 7 Purdue 89, Cal State Northridge 64: Robbie Hummel scored 17 points and JaJuan Johnson had 15 as host Purdue cruised in an opener. Freshman reserve D.J. Byrd scored 13 and Chris Kramer added 11 points.

No. 9 Duke 96, UNC Greensboro 62: Kyle Singler scored 20 points in the first half as host Duke won easily even without suspended guard Nolan Smith and injured forward Mason Plumlee. Jon Scheyer added 18 as the Blue Devils improved to 28-2 in openers under Mike Krzyzewski.

No. 10 Tennessee 83, Austin Peay 54: Scotty Hopson scored 16 points and reserve Cameron Tatum added 15 in host Tennessee's opener. Preseason All-Southeastern Conference selection Tyler Smith had 14 points and 11 rebounds.

No. 12 Connecticut 75, William & Mary 66: Jerome Dyson scored 27 points in his first regular-season game since injuring his right knee last season. The senior guard also had eight assists and four steals. Stanley Robinson added 17 points and freshman Alex Oriakhi had eight points and 10 rebounds for host UConn.

No. 14 Washington 74, Wright St. 69: Isaiah Thomas immediately answered host Washington's call for more scoring this season, putting up 18 of his career-high 30 points in the first half. Still, the defending Pac-10 champions nearly frittered away an 18-point lead.

No. 20 Georgetown 74, Tulane 58: Greg Monroe returned home to New Orleans and finished with 18 points and 11 rebounds as the Hoyas cruised past the Green Wave. Austin Freeman scored 16 points for the Hoyas.

No. 23 Illinois 96, SIU Edwardsville 69: Freshman guard Brandon Paul scored 22 points as host Illinois put up its highest point total in five years.

Denykco Bowles, Aamir McCleary and Stephen Jones scored 13 apiece for Edwardsville.

No. 24 Clemson 84, Presbyterian 41: Freshman Noel Johnson hit four of host Clemson's 14 three-pointers in a runaway opener. David Potter, Andre Young and Bryan Narcisse each hit two threes.

No. 25 Minnesota 87, Tennessee Tech 50: Lawrence Westbrook scored 22 points and keyed a big second-half run to help the host Gophers pull away. Freshman Rodney Williams scored 14 points and Colton Iverson had seven rebounds and four blocks.

Elijah Muhammad led Tennessee Tech with 12 points.

In Saturday games:
No. 11 Butler 73, Davidson

62: Gordon Hayward scored 17 points and Willie Veasley added 15 as Butler held off Davidson.

The Bulldogs twice rallied from 10-point deficits in the first half, then used a 12-0 run to put the game away after Davidson had gone ahead 58-56 with 9:37 left.

The visiting Wildcats got 13 points from Ben Allison.

No. 17 Oklahoma 95, Mount St. Mary's 71: Steven Pledger scored 21 points on 8-of-9 shooting as Oklahoma's heralded freshman class came through in the host Sooners' opener.

Another freshman, 6-foot-9, 296-pound center Tiny Gallon, had 18 points and 15 rebounds, and sophomore Willie Warren added 15 points and 11 assists.

No. 21 Dayton 90, Creighton 80: Chris Johnson had 18 points and 15 rebounds as Dayton won a battle between teams that won 27 games a year ago. Dayton, ranked in the preseason poll for the first time since 1967, overcame a 10-point deficit in the first half and regrouped, pulling away in the closing minutes.

The Flyers won their 21st in a row on their home floor, tying the school record.

High-octane VMI holds on vs. Army

The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Va. — Austin Kenon scored 24 points as Virginia Military held off Army 93-86 in the season opener for both teams on Friday night.

Kenon was only 3-of-11 from the field, but went 17-of-20 from the free throw line for the Keydets.

VMI extended a 43-36 halftime lead to 10 points on Ron Burks' three-pointer. Burks finished with 15 points to go with 10 rebounds and six steals.

The Black Knights, playing their first game under coach Zach Spiker, used an 11-0 run to pull ahead 47-46, but the Keydets responded with an 8-0 run.

Army bounced back to tie it 79-79, only to have VMI score the next six points on the way to finally taking control of the game.

Michael Sparks added 18 points for the Keydets, who had five players score in double figures.

Tyrell Thompson and Cleveland Richard led Army with 14 points each. Jeremy Hence added nine rebounds as Army won the rebounding battle 43-29. The Black Knights also outshot VMI 56 percent to 43 but couldn't overcome 27 personal fouls and a staggering 34 turnovers, the latter converted into 38 points by VMI.

Air Force 65, Western State, Colo., 54: At Air Force Academy, Colo., Grant Parker scored a career-high 26 points and Evan Washington added 14 as Air Force won its seventh straight season opener.

Air Force never trailed, but the Falcons' 7-of-27 shooting in the second half allowed the Division II Mountaineers back into the game. Western State tied it twice in the second half, the last time at 50-50 with 4:34 remaining, before the Falcons closed with a 10-2 run.

Parker scored 18 points in the first half, including a three-pointer in the final seconds that gave the Falcons a 38-27 halftime lead. Parker was 5-of-5 in the opening half.

Sophomore guard Weylan Towns led the Mountaineers with 17 points. Tyler Miller contributed 10.

Radford 76, Navy 65: At Radford, Va., Joey Lynch-Flohr had 21 points and 11 rebounds and Artsiom Parakhouski had 20 points and 13 rebounds in a season-opening victory over the Middies. Blake Smith added 17 points and eight rebounds.

Radford trailed 37-31 at halftime, but shot 56.7 percent (17-of-30) from the floor in the second half to overtake the Midshipmen. Navy shot just 28.6 percent (12-of-42) in the second half, and was outscored 32-12 inside. Radford finished with a 50-45 rebounding advantage.

The Midshipmen led for the final time at 63-62 with 3:31 left, but Radford scored the next 13 points in putting the game away. Parakhouski and Smith scored five points apiece during the run.

Chris Harris paced Navy with 21 points.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: NATIONAL ROUNDUP

No. 2 Texas 47, Baylor 14: At Waco, Texas, Colt McCoy tied the NCAA record for career victories by a starting quarterback, throwing two touchdown passes for the Longhorns.

McCoy is 42-7, tying the record set by former Georgia quarterback David Greene.

Texas led 40-0 by halftime with McCoy throwing scoring passes of 3 and 7 yards to Jordan Shipley.

Cody Johnson ran for 109 yards and two short TDs, and Tre' Newton added a 45-yard scoring run.

Texas (10-0, 6-0 Big 12) reached 10 victories for the ninth successive season, second only to Florida State's 14 consecutive 10-victory seasons from 1987-2000.

Baylor (4-6, 1-5) dropped its fifth in six games.

McCoy left the game midway through the third quarter with 181 yards on 23-for-34 passing.

He got the record-tying triumph in front of a road crowd that had to feel more like home. Floyd Casey Stadium is only a 99-mile drive from Austin. The crowd of about 44,000 was among the largest at Baylor for a Big 12 game and about half wore burnt orange.

Central Florida 37, No. 13 Houston 32: At Orlando, Fla., Central Florida not only found a way to slow Houston's Case Keenum, the Knights didn't give the nation's most prolific passer a chance to pull off another improbable comeback.

Brett Hodges outplayed the Cougars' quarterback and Brynn Harvey rushed for 139 yards and three touchdowns Saturday, leading UCF to the upset that stopped a five-game winning streak Keenum had kept alive with a pair of last-minute rallies.

Harvey scored on runs of 1, 41 and 7 yards, the last set up by an interception that stopped Keenum's streak of consecutive passing attempts without an interception at 123.

Hodges completed 21 of 25 passes for 141 yards and one TD.

Keenum threw for two TDs in the closing minutes, cutting into a 17-point deficit.

He finished 33 of 56 for 377 yards and three scores. He had more than 500 yards in each of the previous two games.

No. 19 Penn State 31, Indiana 20: At State College, Pa., linebacker Navorro Bowman had a 73-yard interception return for a TD, and Evan Royster scored twice as Penn State overcame four first-half turnovers.

Senior quarterback Daryll Clark threw for one score and ran for one in his last game at Beaver Stadium, but he also threw two interceptions.

Penn State (9-2, 5-2 Big Ten) tried to help Indiana (4-7, 1-6) by fumbling away two punt returns in the first half.

Ben Chappell's 26-yard scoring pass gave Indiana a 10-0 lead in the first quarter.

But Penn State settled down after half-time. Bowman's interception return of a Chappell pass gave the Nittany Lions a 17-10 lead in the third quarter.

No. 21 Wisconsin 45, Michigan 24: At Madison, Wis., Scott Tolzien tied a career high with four TD passes and scored on a sneak as Wisconsin made Michigan's miserable Big Ten season worse.

Nick Toon caught two of Tolzien's TD throws for the Badgers (8-2, 5-2), who went to the air after putting together monster rushing performances in their previous two games. It was the third consecutive triumph for the Badgers — and payback on Senior Day for a team that struggled after blowing a lead to Michigan last year.

Tate Forcier was a solid 20 of 26 for 188 yards with two touchdowns and an interception, but it wasn't enough to spare the Wolverines from their sixth consecutive conference loss. After going 4-0, the Wolverines (5-6, 1-6) are reeling going into next Saturday's matchup with Ohio State.

DURHAM, N.C. — Jonathan Dwyer rushed for 110 yards and two touchdowns, Josh Nesbitt accounted for three scores and No. 7 Georgia Tech clinched a spot in the ACC championship game by routing Duke 49-10 on Saturday.

Orwin Smith returned a kickoff 83 yards to spark the slow-starting Yellow Jackets (10-1, 7-1).

Their offense took over after that, scoring touchdowns on five of the following six possessions, rushing for 306 yards and shutting out the Blue Devils in the final three quarters.

Nesbitt was 6-for-10 for 195 yards with touchdown passes covering 32 yards to Stephen Hill and 75 yards to Demaryius Thomas.

He also had a 2-yard touchdown run. Dwyer, the reigning Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year, had scoring runs of 3 and 13 yards in his fourth consecutive 100-yard game.

The Blue Devils (5-5, 3-3) had minus-1 yard rushing through three quarters and finished with only 25.

Georgia Tech outgained Duke 519-281, won its eighth in a row and sewed up the Coastal Division title for the second time in four years.

After a week off and a visit from rival Georgia, it's on to Tampa, Fla., to face the Atlantic champion with a trip to the Orange Bowl on the line.

Thaddeus Lewis was 22-for-35 for 212 yards with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Re'quan Boyette and an interception in garbage time.

Duke has lost two in a row and must beat No. 12 Miami and Wake Forest to qualify for its first bowl since 1994.

For a while, the Blue Devils kept this one interesting, taking a 10-0 lead in the final minute of the first quarter before Smith got the Yellow Jackets back in the game.

He muffed the ensuing kickoff at about the 15, started toward the hash marks, cut back down the right sideline and was dragged down from behind at the 2.

Nesbitt powered into the end zone on the next play.

Army hangs on to beat VMI

The Associated Press

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Patrick Mealy ran 16 times for 136 yards and a touchdown to lead Army to a 22-17 victory over Virginia Military Institute on Saturday.

Alejandro Villanueva caught seven passes for 119 yards and a TD in front of 32,109 at Michie Stadium.

Army lost four of its five fumbles, including one when Trent Steelman mishandled a snap on the VMI 27-yard line with 2:47 remaining and the Black Knights clinging to a 22-17 lead.

The Keydets drove to the Army 34 with less than 25 seconds remaining, but couldn't get closer.

The Black Knights (4-6) ended a three-game skid and reached four victories in a season for the first time since they went 4-7 in 2005.

Howard Abegesah led VMI (2-8), a Football Championship Subdivision team, with 24 carries for 111 yards and a score. The Keydets entered with the second-ranked rushing offense in the former Division I-AA.

Steelman went 11-for-14 passing for 174 yards and a touchdown for Army.

Backup quarterback Cameron Jones ran three times for 100 yards for VMI and threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Tim Maypray.

No. 24 Clemson 43, North Carolina State 23: At Raleigh, N.C., C.J. Spiller became the first player in Clemson history to record a TD passing, rushing and receiving in the same game, helping Clemson pull away.

Spiller, who broke Derrick Hamilton's season record for all-purpose yards on his 16-yard TD run in the third quarter, rushed for 97 yards on 18 carries. He finished with three receptions for 48 yards, including a 34-yard TD catch that blew open the game early in the fourth quarter.

Jamie Harper added a 69-yard TD run for the Tigers (7-3, 5-2 Atlantic Coast Conference), who won their fifth consecutive game. The Tigers will clinch the ACC Atlantic Division if Boston College loses at Virginia later Saturday.

Russell Wilson was 12 of 32 for 183 yards and two TDs for the Wolfpack (4-6, 1-5 ACC), who allowed at least 30 points for the seventh consecutive game.

N.C. State squibbed its first three kick-offs in an effort to keep the ball away from Spiller and fellow speedster Jacoby Ford, setting up the Tigers with good field position. Punter Jeff Ruiz aimed his kicks toward the sideline for the same reason.

Florida State 41, Wake Forest 28: At Winston-Salem, N.C., Jermaine Thomas rushed for 149 yards and a TD, E.J. Manuel was effective in his first career start, and Florida State kept its bowl hopes alive.

Manuel was 15 of 20 for 220 yards. He threw for a score and ran for one replacing injured Christian Ponder for the Seminoles (5-5, 3-4), who will qualify for a bowl for a record 28th year in a row with a victory next week against Maryland.

Wake Forest (4-7, 2-5) lost its fifth in a row and was eliminated from bowl contention in a sour final home game for Riley Skinner.

Looking to become the first quarterback to start in four victories over Seminoles coach Bobby Bowden, Skinner struggled as the Demon Deacons fell behind 31-7 in the second quarter.

Mississippi 42, Tennessee 17: At Oxford, Miss., Mississippi's Dexter McCluster had 324 all-purpose yards for the Rebels.

McCluster, who rushed for 282 yards, scored on runs of 15, 23, 32 and 71 yards in Ole Miss' first triumph over the Volunteers since 1983.

It's the most rushing yards given up to a running back by the Volunteers. The most yards Tennessee had yielded was 217 to Colorado's Mike Pritchard in 1990 and Alabama's Bobby Humphrey in 1986.

Ole Miss (7-3, 3-3 Southeastern Conference) became eligible for a bowl. It was the Rebels' first triumph over Tennessee in 13 games since 1983.

Tennessee (5-5, 2-4) was without three of its celebrated freshmen — wide receiver Nu'Keese Richardson, safety Janzen Jackson and defensive back Mike Edwards. They were arrested early Thursday morning and charged with attempted armed robbery in Knoxville.

In a Friday game:

No. 5 Cincinnati 24, West Virginia 21: At Cincinnati, far from perfect, No. 5 Cincinnati was good enough to stay unbeaten.

Tony Pike threw two scoring passes in a cameo appearance, and the Bearcats overcame a self-destructive first half to beat West Virginia.

Cincinnati (10-0, 6-0 Big East) struggled offensively because of uncharacteristic mistakes — a fumble, a dropped scoring pass, a missed field goal and an interception — all in the first half.

Isaiah Peadar ran for a career-high 175 yards, and sophomore Zach Collaros threw for 205 yards in his fourth start for Pike, who is recovering from an injury to his non-throwing arm.

West Virginia (7-3, 3-2) took advantage of the mistakes to keep it close.

NFL: GAME OF THE WEEK

Rivalry's latest round has familiar look

BY MICHAEL MAROT
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS

Things are back to normal among the NFL's elite.

Peyton Manning is healthy, Tom Brady is throwing touchdown passes, the Indianapolis Colts are unbeaten and the New England Patriots lead the AFC East.

It's the perfect stage for the next chapter in the decade's best rivalry, Sunday night in Indianapolis.

"It's a fun game to play and, obviously, you have playoff implications and playoff hype," Colts linebacker Gary Brackett said.

The annual November showdown has become more than a midseason feature attraction; it's a barometer for what to expect. Four times since 2003, the winner of this regular-season game also became the AFC champion. Three times, the winner brought home the Lombardi Trophy as Super Bowl champ.

And the game is not just a road map to championships. When these teams last met 54 weeks ago, Brady was recuperating from knee surgery and Manning was rounding into MVP form with the Colts an uncharacteristic 3-4.

Indy won 18-15, a victory that started a

Did you know?

Three times since '03, the winner of the teams' regular-season game went on to win the Super Bowl.

One man's opinion

"Peyton Manning is the best pure quarterback in the National Football League, but Tom Brady is my quarterback with a minute left and we're down four points and we need a touchdown because he's done it."

— Rodney Harrison, NBC analyst and former teammate of Tom Brady

Tale of the tape: The quarterbacks

Peyton Manning, Indianapolis

- 3 NFL MVP awards
- 1 Super Bowl title
- 3 head-to-head victories
- 49 TD passes in 2004
- '09 passing: 2,545 yards, 16 TDs

Tom Brady, New England

- 1 NFL MVP award
- 3 Super Bowl titles
- 5 head-to-head victories
- 50 TD passes in 2007
- '09 passing: 2,364 yards, 16 TDs

nine-game winning streak and sent it back to the playoffs. The Colts (8-0) haven't lost a regular-season game since, 17 straight, leaving them one short of the second-longest streak in league history.

The Patriots? Well, after losing last season in Indy, they went 6-2, missed the playoffs and then went 3-2 this season. Three straight victories put New England at 6-2, though it trails the Colts by two games in the chase for the conference's top seed.

"With them being 8-0 right now, it makes it tough if we get behind them with a loss here," Brady said. "There are obviously a lot of things that can happen, and the playoffs are a long ways away, but any time you play the teams that you know are going to be playoff contenders ... you know, that was our problem last year, why we didn't get into the playoffs. We finished 11-5, but we didn't beat any of the playoff teams."

As much as the rivalry has been about the teams, it's also been about the headliners: Peyton vs. Tom Terrific.

The debates never seem to end about which player a team would rather have, Brady with his three Super Bowl titles and one MVP award, or Manning with his three MVP awards and one Super Bowl title.

The two have gone head-to-head eight times since the Colts left for the AFC South in 2002 with Brady winning five times, and
